

It was another busy week for Chris Meek and the Meek for Congress campaign as we move closer to Chris becoming the next congressman from the 4th District. Chris has been spending as much time as possible in the District, talking with, and listening to, voters. Here are some of the highlights of his week:

Saturday, February 11: Chris went to the Discovery Museum's 50th anniversary celebration. The Discovery Museum and Planetarium first opened its doors on January 21, 1962.

Sunday, February 12: Chris spoke at the Stamford RTC Lincoln Day Brunch. Here is an excerpt from the speech where Chris spoke about President Abraham Lincoln.

"I believe that in trying times, we as Americans can learn from the lessons of Abraham Lincoln. After all, despite the problems that we have, our politicians have never had to face something like secession or a Civil War. But even if our problems pale in comparison, we can still look to Lincoln's solutions. We must remember that we are all Americans. It is the common thread shared by us all. America isn't rich or poor. It's not black or white. It doesn't care where you were born. It only cares that you can be anything that you want to be."

Monday, February 13: Chris spoke in front of the Trumbull Republican Town Committee (RTC).

Tuesday, February 14: Chris was at Greenwich's Glory Days Diner for a

The Glory Days Diner in Greenwich was one of Chris Meek's many stops last week.

"Coffee with Chris" event.

Wednesday, February 15: Chris spoke at the Minturnes club in Stamford. Chris also released a statement on the new federal budget released by the Obama administration.

"There is an old saying that in every crisis is also an opportunity. We are in a time of crisis right now, but it is also a time of opportunity. We don't need politics as usual and partisan bickering. We need to have the tough conversations. We need to make difficult decisions. We need to define our future."

Thursday, February 16: Chris spoke at the Ridgefield RTC.

Friday, February 17: Chris held a "Coffee with Chris" event at the Lunch Box in Weston. Chris also attended the Fairfield Republican Lincoln Day dinner that evening.

Chris attended the Discovery Museum's 50th anniversary event.